Shamed by Your English?

You can soon speak and write like a college graduate if you let me help you for 15 minutes a day.

If you've ever been shamed by a mistake in English, maybe I can save you from years of disappointment.

I have met countless numbers of intelligent men and women who are being held back in their jobs and social lives, often without knowing it, because they cannot express themselves fully and easily.

WHAT ABOUT YOU?

If people are not impressed by the way you speak and write—and if you're honest enough with yourself to admit it—you have already taken the first big step to success.

HERE'S WHAT TO DO

You can master good English without going back to school. Over the years I have helped thousands of men and women right in their own homes.

I can help you, too, if you will give 15 minutes a day to the C.I. Method. My answers to the following questions explain why you need a command of good English and how easily you can do something about getting ahead.

Question: What is so important about my ability to speak and write?

Answer: People judge you by the way you speak and write, both in business and in social life.

Question: What does a "command of good English" mean?

Answer: It means you can express yourself clearly and easily without fear of embarrassment or making mistakes.

Question: Are there other advantages to be gained by acquiring a command of good English?

Answer: Yes! Words are actually "tools of thought." The more you learn about words and how to use them to form and express your ideas, the better your thinking becomes.

Question: Wouldn't I have to go back to school for a command of good English?

Answer: No, not any more. You can gain the ability to speak and write like a college graduate right in your own home in only 15 minutes each day.

Question: How do I know your method works?

Answer: There are thousands of letters in my files, testimonials from people in all walks of life who have used the proved Career Institute Method to achieve amazing results. If you send in the coupon below, I will share some of these letters with you.

Question: How can I find out more about the Career Institute Method?

Answer: I will gladly mail a free 32-page booklet to you. Just mail Coupon or send a postcard to: Don Bolander, Dept. 208-42, 555 E. Lange St., Mundelein, Ill. 60060.

SAEACIOUS SMATTERING OF SPACE-WASTING SMALL-TALK!

STAN! N. E. has SM. TV been eating like mad on various cavernous campuses but now a couple of our superstars themselves are the subjects of a free university class at the University of Santa Clara in California! Team taught by John Carmichael and Mike Friedrich the course is entitled "The Development of Personality in Spider-Man and Thor" with classes beginning the end of March! For those of you who are panting to partake of the newest scholastic sensation! Naturally we are as pleased as punch - and breathlessly waiting for the next seminar to begin in Contemporary Forbushism!

ITEM! How about Our Pal SAL BUSCEMA who's been imitating inkling his big brother JOHN BUSCEMA's artwork these past few months? Not only is he a whiz of an inker but we just saw some sample pages of his original illustrations - and as soon as he rents himself a pencil or two it looks as though Big John is gonna have more competition than he bargained for! Although B. J. probably isn't worrying a that much - he's too busy teaching the rest of his family to draw!

ITEM! Speaking of the Buscema brood didja know that the Silver Surfer is unquestionably the hit of the year? Starting with the very first ish it's hit the top of the best seller lists and it looks like it's there to stay. All of that must prove something - like for instance it's really a cinch to turn out a great comic magazine - all you need are sensational stories, fantastic artwork, superb characterization and echo plots - not to mention the most dangerously dramatic concept in years! See? It's a breeze! Anyone can do it!

ITEM! Leave us shed a tear or two for Jazzy JOHNNY ROMITA. He's one of the few light-hearted luminaries who spends more time drawing here in the Bullpen than at home - so every time we need a rush cover a fast art correction or some help for a less experienced pencil pusher we turn to ol' Ring A Ding. Then after loading him down with all those extra chores, we berate him for being late with his Spidey deadline! Now do you see why he relates to the Web Spinner and all his hang ups?

ITEM! It suddenly occurred to us to take a totally useless survey of how many of our Bullpen bigwigs are sporting beards these days. When we got thru counting we realized that almost a cool ten percent are fuzzy faces. Wanna know who? We thought you'd never ask! So now before they can rush to a razor here they are - SMILIN' STAN LEE, RASCALLY ROY THOMAS, JIMBO JOHN VERPOORTEN, JIM MADMAN! MOONEY AWESOME ARNIE DRAKE, NEFARIOUS NEAL ADAMS and Stalwart STAN G. GROOVY GARY FRIEDRICH and Juvinly JIM BTERANKU used to sport some facial shrubbiness themselves, but they're now almost aggressively clean-shaven. Think they're trying to tell us something?

STAN'S SOAPBOX

Over the past months, many readers have written to complain about not being given advance notice when any Marvel madman are to be interviewed on radio or TV - and hence having to miss the great event! This seems as good a time as any to explain that it's virtually impossible to clue you in in time because we ourselves receive only a few days' notice before any such appearances - and by that time the mags in which such notices should appear are already printed and possibly even on sale! (You may remember our telling you in the past that our little masterworks are sent to the printer months before they appear on the newsstands.) But be of good faith, one and all! If ever we figure out how to bridge the seemingly insurmountable time lapse gap we'll make sure that you have the same chance to be bored with our oratory as the rest of the Bullpen! Till then - Vale Aigue Ave yab!

Mutant Mail-Box

ADDRESS YOUR LETTERS TO:
THE MARVEL COMICS
GROUP, SECOND FLOOR
625 MADISON AVE.,
NEW YORK, N. Y. 10022

Dear Stan and Gary,

In issue #47, Gene Wallace wrote in complaining that Jack o' Diamonds could not be a Mutant since he was not born with his powers. You replied that one does not need to be born with special powers to be a Mutant. This agrees with the definition which I've heard — to wit: "A change in mind or body which breeds true to form." It says nothing about being born with changed abilities, so if Jack o' Diamonds had kids who could also become diamond (terrific thought!) he would be a Mutant.

But this brings up a problem. In real life, people are always being electrocuted, blown up, doused with chemicals, and hit by radiation. They may be injured or killed, but none of them develop super-powers. The standard comic book explanation is "a million-to-one chance", but when you have dozens of heroes and hundreds of villains running around with super-powers, this idea looks pretty weak. I have worked out a theory which seems to explain the comic-book world's huge number of super-types.

Inheritable traits come in two sorts, Dominant and Recessive. Only one parent need have a dominant trait for their child to inherit it, but a recessive must be possessed by both parents.

Let's suppose that many hundreds of years ago a recessive mutation took place in some person, who would pass it on to lots of his descendants. Eventually, two of these descendants would marry, and since they both possessed the gene, their children would be what I call Potential Mutants — people whose cells in an emergency were capable of absorbing lethal forces and adapting to them. Since the genes would be as adaptable as the other cells, their children would inherit their powers making them mutants. Mutants would be rare until the 20th century, when science began to release powerful forces on a large scale.

So to sum up, we have:

1. Homo sapiens — who may carry recessive genes which if paired with another such gene will result in the birth of a . . .

2. Potential Mutant — an ordinary human whose cells have a super-adaptability to an emergency to absorb outside forces and become . . .

3. Accidental Mutant — (Fantastic Four, Electro) a person born normal who gains permanent super-powers through an accidental occurrence, and can pass them on to his or her descendants. Not to be confused with a . . .

4. Pure Mutant — (X-Men, Magneto, Factor Threat) the offspring of Homo Sapiens carrying P.M. genes modified by radiation or other factors so that the child is born with mutant powers. (Note these powers may be dormant and un-released even by the possessor until activated by some shock.)

5. Artificial Mutants — (Inhumans) the results of deliberate alteration of the genetic code by humans, resulting in a pure mutant of pre-known abilities.

6. Second Generation Mutants — (Child of Reed and Sue Richards?) offspring of 1., 2., and 3.

The remainder of the super-beings fall into five other categories.

7. Homo Sapiens Plus — who gain artificial powers which their children cannot inherit.

8. Cyborgs.

9. Aliens.

10. Lost Races.

11. Supernatural (Magic) Types.

Edward Lynn, 38 Finella Place, Dundas
Angus, Scotland, Great Britain

Thanks for the laudable listing, Edward, but our befuddled Bullpenners just want to know under which category they fit! (After all, you've obviously gotta be some kind of Mutant to put in the kind of long hours they do — at least, to hear them tell it!)

Dear Stan, and Assorted Producers of X-MEN,

Bravo to Tod Stones of Burbank, California, who in X-MEN #51 offered the most logical explanation to date concerning the abilities of the Human Torch and Iceman. "Now," he asks, "how can a being of pure fire or ice move, talk or think?" If I may just fill in this end of his explanation:

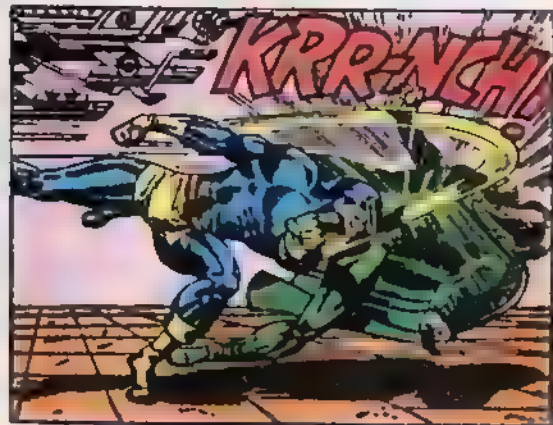

One of the most plausible theories concerning the workings of the human body is a combination of the Vitalists' and Mechanists' philosophies. The body consists of a physical form, capable of carrying out certain life processes, which is dominated and controlled by the brain and a non-physical life force, or psyche, dominated by a mental force, the mind. All life has the psyche in common, and in its absence, death results. Only man has a fully developed mind (the basis of Aristotle's RATIONAL PSYCHE) which, besides directing the function of the brain, gives him the ability to think, reason, and create. When we say somebody has "lost his mind", we mean he has lost his ability to reason.

At any rate, the non-physical psyche and mind are capable of occupying any form; the body and brain comprise only one. If they were contained within a body of fire or ice, that body would be able to live and think. Its motion could be directed by the energy of the mind, and speech would be made possible by energy vibrations on various frequencies, energy emitted from the life forces. The result, of course, is one Human Torch and one Iceman. Both are capable of converting the molecules of the air to fire or ice by the same manner in which their mutant abilities enable them to convert the molecules of their bodies to these forms. Hence, their powers.

I hope this letter has provided some enlightenment on a major issue.

Dear Stan and Co.,

As a premiere of the Smith/Dee art team, X-MEN #53 was less than spectacular. My first impression was that Jack Kirby drew it after several days on methedrine.

Because of the time lapse between your publishing date and the time the mag goes on sale, this letter will probably be of little use. Nevertheless, there are a few specific criticisms I have to get off my chest.

1. Smith is obviously a close student of Kirby. This, in itself, is good because no one draws the super-human body like the King. The difference is in Smith's backgrounds (of which there is very little). He magnifies the characters and neglects the setting, which is a very important part of the total effect. The only real background was in the first panel of page 2. It was fantastic, and it was proof that he should concentrate more on that sort of thing.

2. The use of black ink blots (to denote escaping energy) was overused. Kirby carefully paces the use of this technique, thereby making it an effective dramatic tool.

3. Except for Blastaar (who was drawn extremely well) the characters' faces were rather expressionless. It is the varied range of emotional make-ups that has made the X-Men seem like individuals rather than assembly-line products.

4. Now for a few good points: For the first time in over fifty issues, someone has drawn Jean Grey to look like a real woman (page 3). The way the Angel's wings keep changing shape (like those of a real bird) is quite an inventive touch. And finally, Smith's fight scenes aren't half bad. I'll even forgive his ineptness in trying to approximate Kirby's machinery.

Despite the flaws I mentioned earlier, Barry Smith is an artist with promise. And that's what Marvel is all about: growth and a continual striving to be the best, whatever your bag happens to be.

I'll be looking forward to future issues.

Edward Newsom, 4652 Byron Ave.

The more so now that nefarious Neal Adams is doing the artwork chores, in all probability.

However, a few words of explanation may help you somewhat to understand why you felt Barry's art didn't measure up to X-MEN standards... and, incidentally, why his art that will soon be gracing the pages of THE AVENGERS may grab you where you live!

Barry came to this country from England last summer, bringing nothing with him from London except his drawing pencil and a head full of ideas. He did that X-MEN ish on his own as a sample, not knowing just what the current developments in the series were... or even if it would ever be used. However, Stan and the rest of the Bullpen saw such promise in the talented young Britisher that they purchased the artwork — and proceeded to keep him busy on other efforts. Unfortunately, during his recent stint on DAREDEVIL, he was living in a small hotel room with inadequate lighting and drawing facilities, and was thus hampered from doing his best work... although many Marvelites wrote in to tell us that his Daredevil was the best yet!

Now, however, bashful Barry is back in England (a bit unwillingly, since his visa ran out) for the nonce, and has full access to his own regular equipment and drawing desk. The results — which you'll start seeing in AVENGERS #66 — will no doubt move and shake you as much as they did us when they arrived by trans-Atlantic mail!

Dear Stan and the Gang,

I just picked up the latest X-MEN #53 at our local PX without a glance at the cover or contents, since the artwork in this mag is usually superb (understatement). In fact, it was the artwork and excellent writing in Marvel Comics that pulled me away from another brand which shall remain nameless. I don't know what happened to the regular artist, but whoever the replacement is is not up to your usually high standards. Please bring back your original artist. 'Nuff said on that!

To answer Mark Gruenwald's comments on the flight powers of the Angel: It's obvious that Angel's wings are aerodynamically impossible, that scientific analysis will prove that he can't fly. Also, birds steer by use of tail feathers, and the Angel has none. Therefore, he can't steer or maneuver, right? Not so! Science has also proven that a bumblebee can't fly because it's aerodynamically impossible, nor does he have tail feathers to steer — yet the fact remains, bumblebees fly and steer, probably because no one ever told them that they were impossible. At any rate, who says that the Angel has the wings of a bird? As far as I can see, his wings only look like birds' wings. In reality, the material they are made of may be actually the lighter insect wing material. It might just look like feathers. This explanation would also make easier to understand how the Angel can conceal his wings under clothing so easily. No harness made could conceal birds' wings without some bulge, but insect wings would fold and conform almost perfectly flat without a harness. They would also be easier for his muscles to move. Another point! Mark states that his wings couldn't support his weight. To my knowledge, no mention has ever been made of the Angel's real weight. He could be a common, everyday 83-pound muscleman with hollow bones!

In all, I would say that yours are the finest comic mags on the market, without qualification. Keep up the outstanding work and Make Mine Marvel!

Dear Stan, Arnold, Don, and Werner,

I have just finished reading X-MEN #52 and I only have two words for you — sheer genius! This story is one of the best you've printed. Cyclops' portrayal of Erik the Red was excellent, and I would like to thank you for finally increasing his power. (I refer to the power blasts hurled from his fingertips, pg. 2). It's about time Cyke began to mature (powerwise, that is) and gain control of his mutant power. It was the only gripe I had concerning X-MEN, and now it's gone. So, I guess that makes X-MEN perfect in my book. The origins were great, and I can't wait to see the Angel's. One more thing, don't make Bobby's gorgeous girl-friend a member of the X-MEN. She's too powerful!

Ken Miller, 1704 B. Tower

Kenny boy, the new (we hope) permanent team of Roy Thomas and Neal Adams has plans for our merry mutants that even you can scarcely suspect! As for the luscious Lorna Dane, you'll notice that she's made an overdue appearance this ish (for two panels, at least)... but not as an X-Man! (In fact, not even as an X-Lady!)

As to the frantic future, we'll have to remain mum on that for a while, but with a cast like the X-Men, Lorna, amazing Alex Summers, the mysterious Moholoth, and now the mutant-baiting team of Judge Chalmers and young Larry Trask — plus the return next ish of some misunderstood mutants you haven't seen in many an epic — well, let's just say that happy days are here again for X-Men enthusiasts, and let it go at that!

THE NEXT SENTINELS STRIKE!

Do you have art talent worth developing? Take our free test and see

If you have ever wondered whether you had art talent, here is your chance to find out. The founders of Famous Artists School have put together what many artists and educators consider to be the most revealing test of art ability ever devised. It is offered to you free.

Designed for people uncertain of their ability

The people who take this Art Talent Test are of all ages and occupations. Most of them have little or no previous art training. By professional standards, their drawings may be awkward and amateurish. But the ones who possess the gift of art talent reveal it in many ways. Through simple little exercises, they show the inborn sense of design, the feeling for composition, the ability to observe, and the lively imagination which are such important ingredients of art talent.

The reliability of this method of screening, as well as the effectiveness of the training, has been proven again and again by the success of our students and graduates.

They passed the test and went on to become successful artists

When Anthony Fotia took the Art Talent Test, he was a mail clerk, "stuck" in a low-pay routine job. Today, he's an artist for a printing firm, doing exciting creative work. Kathleen Giromda went from a salesgirl in a department store to a fashion illustrator in the same store. Virginia Bartter, a farmer's wife and mother of three, now sells just about everything she paints. These are just a few of the literally hundreds of "success stories" our students report to us.

So if you love to sketch or dabble in paints—and have often wondered if you "have what it takes" to become a well-paid commercial artist or sparetime professional painter—why not seize this opportunity to find out? All you need is a pencil and a half-hour of your time. With your special interest, it will be one of the most intriguing and enjoyable half-hours you ever spent.

What the Talent Test covers

First, you will be shown ten pairs of simple designs and asked to pick the one in each pair that has "a feeling of rightness" about it. Then you will see twenty pairs of pictures, and check which composition in each pair is more pleasing. You'll be asked to do original sketches to demonstrate your imagination and powers of observation. And in similar ways, your instinctive feeling for mood, form, movement, facial expressions, textures, and so on will be tested.

When you complete the test and mail it back, it will be graded free by a member of the School's staff. If you receive a passing grade (and we must warn you that many don't), or can offer sufficient evidence of art talent, you will then be eligible to enroll. You may choose whichever of our courses is best suited to your goals.

Courses offer personal instruction

These courses were especially designed for talented people who can't leave their families or jobs for art training away from home. The 12 famous artists who started the School over 19 years ago contributed all their lifetime secrets of art technique to what they believe to be the finest art lessons ever created. They took time out from their own busy careers and made thousands of special drawings to demonstrate each point. Then they devised a method of constructive criticism that is as personal as tutoring. Your instructor, who is himself required to be a practicing professional artist, spends up to several hours on just one of your assignments. He actually draws or paints his suggestions for improvement on a separate sheet of paper, and then "talks" to you by letter, dictating a long, friendly message of specific advice and encouragement.

You will receive an interesting brochure about our School and its revolutionary methods along with your free Art Talent Test. If you have ever dreamed of success in art, and wondered if it were possible, why not mail the coupon at left for both the Talent Test and the brochure right now?
